Strike Breakers Appear At City Garbage Wharf

Picket Line
Strengthened

By DAVE STOCK

Striking city workmen today increased the strength of their picket lines at the city garbage wharf, following the appearance Friday of two apparent strike-breakers.

The Civic Employees' Protective Association, Local No. 50, has not labelled the two as strike breakers but Ed. Duncan, secretary, maintained: "The picket line was there and they went through it. People can draw their own conclusions."

Mr. Duncan said it was known the two workers—one in his early 20's; the other about 60—had been engaged by the city's personnel office.

the city manager's department. The manager, C. C. Wyatt, was instructed by council Thursday to hire whatever men he needed to carry on essential services during the strike. Mr. Wyatt was not available for comment today.

The two non-union workmen were taken to the garbage wharf about noon Friday in a car which pickets say was driven by Douglas C. McNair, assistant junior engineer. The car passed placard-carrying pickets and drove directly onto the wharf.

The two men cleaned out the incinerators and quit at 4:30. (Continued on Page 26)

MEN TO WEAR (SOB) . . . FALSIES AT ASCOT

LONDON (AP)—Falsies have appeared among the menfolk at the swanky Ascot races. Capricious fashion suddenly decreed that really smart men should have mustaches. Many were tipped off too late to grow their own.

"The rush for false mustaches, one guinea ($2.94) apiece, absolutely amazed us," said Gerald Rex, whisker-maker to the theatrical trade. "One gentleman wanted a white mustache with an artistic tobacco stain, and another required false eyebrows as well."

Guatemala Rebels Advance 9 Miles

Communiqué Admits Capital Strafed; Peasants Join Invaders

GUATEMALA (AP)—A Guatemalan communiqué acknowledged today invading forces have advanced a little more than nine miles inside the country from the Honduras border.

The capital's airport was strafed by a single fighter plane in the third air raid of the war.

There were reports of looting by peasants outside the capital.

The ministry of interior issued a communiqué, the first on actual war operations, saying the invaders had advanced 15 kilometers (9.3 miles) on the eastern sector from the frontier with Honduras.

The invasion was the culmination of a long-standing effort to unseat the Communist-backed government of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman.

A lone fighter plane, apparently a Thunderbolt, strafed Guatemala's airport at 8 a.m. (8 a.m. PDT). Anti-aircraft guns blazed away at the plane, which later bombed the small community of Villa Canales.

The second raid occurred around 11 p.m. Friday when a C-47 dived through rain clouds and swept over the centre of the city. Anti-aircraft fire blazed from every corner of the city. Anti-aircraft fire blazed from every corner of the

Indo-China Parley Holds Special Session

GENEVA (AP)—The Indo-China peace conference went into an extraordinary Saturday evening session late today after a series of private East-West talks had delayed the start by almost four hours.

The urgency of the session was caused by the announcement of U.S. Undersecretary Delegates to the nine-party conference were reported to be seeking some sort of compromise formula for the withdrawal of Viet Minh troops from the Indo-Chinese states of Laos and Cambodia before Eden and Smith leave.

As the conference convened there was no indication whether the private talks had been successful. The central figures in the conversations were Red China's Chou En-lai, Eden and Jean Chauvel, acting head of the French delegation.

Byron Johnson Offers Plan To Save Project Part Private, Part Public Financing Scheme Proposed

Former Premier Byron Johnson today declared that if all private alternatives fail the British Columbia government should go in with Westcoast Transmission Company to build the natural gas pipeline from the Peace River district to the lower B.C. coast.

"This project is so important to the welfare of British Columbia's economy that the provincial government should, if necessary, call a special session of the Legislature to work out an arrangement with the company," Mr. Johnson said.

Mr. Johnson was premier of B.C. when the initial plans for the big 662-mile pipeline was first a d v a n c e d and is thoroughly familiar with the details.

He disclosed that as long as two years ago, before he left office, he had mapped out his plan which could go into effect if the United States refused Westcoast's application to sell natural gas in the Pacific Northwest states, as happened Friday.

Refusal of the U.S. to allow the import of the gas, cuts down the available market so severely that financing of the project would not be possible.

But the potential for industrial development of the whole of British Columbia is so important that the government should be prepared to step in and throw the provincial credit behind the scheme, he said.

"As it stands at the moment—unless some other way is found—the gas wells of the Peace River may lie capped for 50 years and B.C. will get nothing out of them until future growth forces the gas to market. We cannot wait that long."

Mr. Johnson said he does not favor the government underwriting the pipeline bonds outright. But he is convinced that a government participation plan can be worked out with private capital that would assure the province of the development it needs.

How Mr. Johnson's Plan Would Work

Here is how it would work: Cost of bringing the pipeline into Vancouver and down to the U.S. border is approximately $10,000,000.

Westcoast would be asked to raise $50,000,000 of this, which it could reasonably do from private financing as the B.C. market for gas, on a long-term basis, should be sufficient to guarantee a return on these bonds.

The B.C. government would then put up the remaining $60,000,000, by floating a government loan and for this money would receive bonds of the pipeline company and rights to exercise a rigid supervision on the operation.

The first charge against all revenues of the company would be the interest and sinking funds on the $50,000,000 worth of privately held bonds.

since we have worked on plans for export to California for some time."

McMahon is expected to make an immediate application for a hearing date before the FPC for a California permit.

Meanwhile, Westcoast is receiving indirect support from U.S. Federal Power Commission. Friday, and the new move is an attempt to overcome the shattering FPC ruling.

McMahon was quoted in a New York interview as saying a bid may be made for California markets.

"It's been a setback," he said, "but we are not too concerned."

West Coast Transmission Co. vice-president Frank McMahon revealed today his firm will seek new U.S. markets for the production of Peace River natural gas wells.

BAPCO-TIMES SWIM TO HELP SOLARIUM'S CRIPPLED CHILDREN

You Can Win $1,000 by Estimating Flo Chadwick's Time

The Bapco-Times award of $1,000 will go to the one person who comes nearest to the exact time spent by Miss Chadwick in the water. Timing will be down to the last minute and second.

Since Flo is receiving a guarantee for her swim the estimates will apply only to the attempt that is declared official. It may be that she will have one or two false starts—that is, she may run into sudden change of weather when barely under way, and might then postpone her official attempt.

The $1,000 award was conceived by former Victoria mayor J. Carl Pendray, president of Bapco, with the aim of utilizing the big swim to help the work of Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children.

Here's how the Solarium will benefit:

Solarium Junior League girls have undertaken the job of sorting and tabulating the thousands of estimates which are expected. In return, it has been agreed that estimators shall enclose a contribution to the "Shower of Dimes" with their estimate.

Every cent of this money will go to the Solarium.

All administration, promotion and advertising

costs are being absorbed by Bapco and the Times.

Complete rules, and the first coupon, will be printed in Tuesday's Times. During the contest, each subscriber will automatically get 14 coupons—on Tuesday and Wednesday each week for seven weeks. There is no limit to the number of estimates a person may make.

Many facts about Flo's previous records have been published. The unknown factor this time will be the effects of frigid Straits temperatures.

As training progresses, all these facts must be weighed by the reader. The person who wins the $1,000 will thus qualify as an expert student of records, tides, temperatures, wind velocities, human nature and—who knows?—luck!

Hard and Tough Slogging Ahead

By ART STOTT

THE hard labor of managing big, modern government looms up before Premier Bennett. Problems—large ones and many not of his own making—arise to demand action. They can't be swept under the rug. They have to be slugged out.

Now comes the serious, arduous and painful business of grappling with issues, withstanding body blows.

The Government and the people of B.C. took one yesterday. When the U.S. Federal Power Commission rejected Westcoast Transmission Company's plans to pipe natural gas into Pacific Northwest states, bright dreams of northern provincial development disappeared in a cloud. The pipeline, which experts considered feasible only if supplies could be exported into Washington and possibly beyond, was to be an artery for pulp industrial blood into the provincial sections stretching south from the Peace River fuel tank.

Now comes the reassessment of plans in the north—an agonizing reappraisal for both the public and the Government. Where stands the PGE northern extension now? What of the potential industrial growth to be irrigated by the flow of natural gas?

Mr. Bennett has problems far bigger than the conventional troubles of politics.

Resignations

Closer to home he has difficulties, too. Internal stability, confidence in his administration, is not improved by the recent resignations of three key men.

First came the announcement of James D. W. Blyth's withdrawal from the B.C. Power Commission, with the cryptic announcement of his concern for "the future of public power."

This week D'Arcy Baldwin left the Labor Relations Board a day or two before it was eliminated and a new one, attacked by labor, appointed to replace it.

Then David Livingston, chief construction engineer for the PGE, quit because he and his principals, who are laymen, could not see eye-to-eye on the proper way to build a railway around Howe Sound.

Among the lower echelons there is unrest. R. K. Gervin last week sought, on behalf of the B.C. Civil Servants' Association, to re-establish contact between representatives of that group and the cabinet liaison members. The two have not met for 18 months, though civil servants have questions of vital interest to them to discuss and have sought conferences.

'Nervous in the Service'

What do these personnel problems add up to?

Phrase it politely, and it seems that working for the Government is not attractive enough to hold a number of top-flight men. Put it a little more bluntly and it appears the boys are "nervous in the service."

This is not a revolt of soreheads. It goes deeper—so deep that efficient administration of the people's business could suffer seriously unless an improvement occurs.

The British Columbia Government Employees' Association publication, "The Provincial," makes no bones about the question. In its April issue, Editorial it says, "No employer can forever ignore the just demands of his employees and expect to administer his affairs efficiently."

The same issue in "The President's Corner" adds the comment: "Under our way of life we will always have government, and by the same token we will always have a Civil Service, and surely it is in the best interests of the tax-paying public to have harmony and good will from their servants, be they elected or administrative."

Perhaps the civil servants rushed the Government while it was still too young. Perhaps they would have been wiser to give the Bennett regime time to catch breath before plumping into its lap a number of questions which, in some cases, had not been solved by the previous government.

It is unfortunate, for instance, that the civil servants' campaign for the right to pursue arbitration proceedings was in progress during the last election—and was taken in some quarters to be a gesture of political pressure. The association's secretary is emphatic in stating the move was above partisan politics.

The problems, external and internal, mount up. After the flush of election victory, after the successes of a session in which the Government was able to push through legislation to its own liking, days of toil and sweat are at hand.

They are days of trouble not only in the restricted political sense, but days of gravity and concern to the people whose business is handled by the administration.

14-Year-Old Boy Wins Western Plowing Honors

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (BUP)—A 14-year-old boy carried off the Manitoba and western Canada plowing championships here yesterday.

A crowd of 8,000 thronged to a farm outside Portage to see Gerald Lytle, of High Bluff, Man., win the contest with a tractor plow. Gerald is a Grade 8 student.

R. D. Robertson, Manitoba agriculture minister, won the "politicians' class" for Manitoba legislators. Robertson had challenged federal agricultural minister James Gardner and the agriculture ministers of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia to a plowing match, but the arrangements fell through.

Winner of the first mayor's plowing contest to be held in western Canada was Mayor Harry Venier of Medicine Hat, Alta. Three mayors accepted the challenge of Mayor Henderson of Portage, who donated a silver tray for the event. Henderson came third.

Vets Will Get Cheaper Care In Hospitals

Ottawa Relaxes Regulations

OTTAWA (CP)—Veterans Minister Lapointe today announced in the Commons a relaxation of treatment regulations which may make hospital care cheaper for thousands of war veterans.

At present, some pensioners may be admitted to veterans' hospitals for free treatment of non-pensionable disabilities.

A single veteran in this category must have an income of less than $800 a year, a married veteran an income of less than $1,200.

Other pensioners seeking such treatment must pay a daily rate of $12.55.

Mr. Lapointe said that by an order-in-council passed two weeks ago, veterans who draw pensions or served in a war theatre and earn less than $800 or $1,200 a year, will still pay nothing. The rate for others will be fixed on a sliding scale according to income. This will be about one per cent of every $100 of income above the $800 or $1,200.

As an example, said Mr. Lapointe, a married veteran who draws a pension or served in war theatre, has two children and earns $50 a week would be able to receive treatment for non-pensionable disability for no more than $45. If he went to a civilian hospital, he might have to pay as much as $600 for similar treatment.

STILL PAYING

The government will of course continue to pay the full cost for all treatment of pensionable disabilities.

Mr. Lapointe said the new regulations will result in almost 100 per cent bed occupancy in veterans' hospitals across Canada.

He told D. R. Michener (PC, Toronto St. Pauls) that total capacity for veterans in Canada now is 9,974 beds. At the end of April, 7,335 beds or about 80 per cent were occupied.

Hunt had been in ill health, and Senator Earle Clements (Dem.-Ky.) said he knows Hunt had "felt some concern" about his condition.

The senator was found in his office by Mike Mantos and Ira Whitlock, members of his staff, when they reported for work this morning.

Mrs. Hunt was at the hospital when he died.

Hunt's death leaves the Senate membership at 47 Democrats and 47 Republicans. There also is one independent, Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon.

India Impounds Cargo Aboard French Plane

Believed Indo-China Military Supplies

CALCUTTA, India (UP)—India impounded some cargo aboard a Saigon-bound French airliner here today after detaining the plane's 84 passengers overnight on suspicion they were military personnel bound for Indo-China in civilian clothes.

The passengers were permitted to proceed to Saigon today but Indian customs officials held some packages and boxes they found aboard the aircraft on grounds their contents were not shown on the plane's manifesto.

Reports yesterday when the plane was detained, said Indian customs officials found military equipment and military pass-ports aboard.

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru has announced that military air traffic to and from Indo-China may not cross India. American planes ferrying reinforcements to Dien Bien Phu during the battle for that fortress were forced to detour thousands of miles out of the way.

The big Armagnac airliner reported operated by the French charter firm CGTAA was searched intensively when it landed at Calcutta on a refuelling stop.

Indian customs officials at Dum Dum airfield here said they found some "regular military uniforms" in luggage of some of the civilian-clothed passengers, and that some of the 76 men aboard were traveling under army orders.

The French vice-consul here insisted the men and eight women passengers were civil servants or government employees in Indo-China.

Ottawa Turns Out For Triple Wedding

OTTAWA (UPI)—The three eldest daughters of Peruvian Ambassador German Fernandez Concha were married here today in a colorful triple ceremony performed by Msgr. Giovanni Panico, apostolic delegate to Canada.

The three-way wedding of the pretty, dark-eyed sisters brought out one of the most colorful crowds of government and diplomatic leaders seen in Ottawa in many years. More than 500 persons crowded into St. George's church in fashionable west end Ottawa. Another 800 lined the steps and the street outside and waited more than two hours in a brilliant sun to see the wedding party come and go.

The Ambassador's 23-year-old daughter Victoria, was married to Peter M. Bonardi, of Montreal. Luzmila, 21, was wed to Dr. Roque Bellido Tagle, a Lima, Peru, eye surgeon, and 20-year-old Amparo married Angel Carnevali, a Caracas, Venezuela, cocoa planter.

The ambassador gave his three daughters away in the ceremony. He escorted Victoria down the aisle, while Canadian Associate Defense Minister Ralph O. Campney served as god-father to Luzmila and Col. Sydney C. Oland, honorary consul of Peru in Halifax, N.S., escorted Amparo to the altar.

Reveals Canada's Stand at IWA Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said today he is personally opposed to bringing down wheat prices to the International Wheat Agreement floor to force importing countries to take their full allotment.

Mr. Howe replied to questions in the Commons in connection with current IWA talks in London where new terms have been proposed by importing countries.

The IWA floor is $1.55 U.S. a bushel for No. 1 northern wheat, compared with the current price of $1.72 1/2. The IWA ceiling is $2.05.

Opposition leader Drew asked if Mr. Howe could continue the status of the London negotiations, especially since reports say the Canadian delegate, W. C. McNamara, has approved the proposed terms.

Mr. Howe replied the routine meeting is partly dealing with preliminary negotiations. The new terms would replace the present agreement which expires within two years. The Canadian representative had received no specific instructions and had not asked for any.

However, he said he expects to receive information by Monday and would tell the Commons if it concerns the price of wheat.

Car Owner Blamed For Fatal Accident

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver fuel dealer Friday was blamed by a coroner's jury for an accident he didn't even see.

Singh Thandi was the owner of a truck which ran downhill at 60 miles an hour Monday night, crashing into the back of a car on Marine Drive, and killed Mrs. Rebecca Winifred Cook.

The verdict exonerated the driver but found the accident was due to the owner's failure to keep the vehicle in good order.

Peron Reshuffles Argentine Cabinet

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Juan D. Peron's government Friday announced a cabinet reorganization plan cutting his present 21 ministries to 16. The government said it will introduce a bill Monday embodying the scheme, abolishing the existing ministries of national defense, economic affairs, technical affairs, political affairs and justice. But the announcement indicated the new line-up will cover defense through separate army, navy and air ministries.

No confirmation was available from Packard or Studebaker officials.

If the deal goes through, it would be the third merger in the auto industry in the last few years. Kaiser-Frazer and Willys Overland were the first to merge, while Nash-Kelvinator and Hudson Motor Car Co. joined to form American Motors Corp.

Drew Challenges PM On Sask. Dam Issue

Opposition Leader Claims Rift in Cabinet Over Construction of Power Project

OTTAWA (BUP)—Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent was faced today with a challenge from Opposition Leader Drew to explain an apparent rift within his cabinet on construction of the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation dam.

Drew said in the Commons Friday night that the prime minister should explain the difference of opinion in the cabinet. He quoted Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner, who said in an interview in Saskatoon last week that "I am the advocate of the dam, but I am not the government of Canada."

On the principle of cabinet solidarity which is one of the cornerstones of the parliamentary form of government, Drew said that an explanation should be given Parliament.

Those (Gardiner's) words mean nothing unless they mean that while the minister advocates the dam, the government does not advocate it, Drew said.

Mr. St. Laurent listened to most of the debate, but did not comment. Gardiner agreed that the quotation in the newspaper interview was an accurate report of what he had said.

Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) and A. M. Campbell (CCF, The Battlefords) also tried to lay the blame for delay in construction on the prime minister.

Drew said it is necessary only to read the opinion in the case of atomic scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer "to realize both the sensitiveness with which this administration is dealing with civil rights and the competence with which they are going after the Communists."

Drew's remarks were taken as a slap at McCarthy, although he did not mention the Wisconsin senator by name.

In response to a question by Keating about the accomplishments of the Eisenhower administration, Dewey said:

"Well, everybody has been looking at the senatorial hearings for the last two months, and I am afraid that the spotlight on one tiny little corner of the whole scope of government has been diverting to the point of confusion."

"I think the great improvement is in the handling of Communists which is the thing you know, everybody talks

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By AB KENT and IRVING STRICKLAND

Life Magazine this week carries an article on the current teen-age practice of "going steady." What do you think of the habit—good or bad?

Joe Mantor, 756 Yates: "Teenagers shouldn't start going steady until after 18. They're too young to know their own minds until 21 and not old enough for marriage until 25."

Frank Britton, 1029 North Park: "I think it's a good idea, but not for the younger teenagers of 13 and 14. Older ones get to know each other properly by going steady."

Anne Arnold, 1054 Princess: "It depends on the age. I don't think teenagers should go steady until they are 17 or 18, and I speak from experience. I went steady with a boy for three years and I regret it. I got too used to the one boy, and when we broke up I didn't know what to do. I don't think a teen-ager knows his own mind until he's out on his own."

Don King, 742 Kings: "I think there's lots of time for teenagers to go steady after they've reached 18. Before that they should be having a good time. By 21, a person should be capable of knowing what he wants."

Jerry Lavigne, 1220 Pembroke: "So many things evolve from such an association—like Beaver Lake the other day. I am deadly against it. I have a daughter myself, and I certainly won't allow her to go steady."

Dewey Indirectly Scores McCarthy

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UP)—Governor Dewey indirectly scored McCarthy Friday night during a television interview in which he praised the work of Attorney-General Herbert Brownell Jr. and federal loyalty boards.

Dewey, appearing on a program with Rep. Kenneth B. Keating, Rochester Republican, said the attorney-general and the loyalty boards are "the only people who really do anything are the loyalty boards and the attorney-general," Dewey said.

Dewey read it is necessary only to read the opinion in the case of atomic scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer "to realize both the sensitiveness with which this administration is dealing with civil rights and the competence with which they are going after the Communists."

Dewey's remarks were taken as a slap at McCarthy, although he did not mention the Wisconsin senator by name.

A Blow to Canadian Plans

YESTERDAY'S DECISION BY the U.S. Federal Power Commission was a tragic blow to the hopes of British Columbians who had envisioned a whole new industrial future rising from the use of natural gas.

The decision, which allotted the market in the northwest states to a United States pipeline company, means that the Westcoast Transmission Company cannot sell Alberta and British Columbia gas in that area. Since the British Columbia market alone is not large enough to justify construction of the $130-million pipeline from the Peace River district, the U.S. ruling effectively kills the project for the foreseeable future.

Barring any possible appeals from the Federal Power Commission decision which might change the situation, it appears that the vast natural gas wealth of northern British Columbia must remain untapped for years to come, that interior and lower mainland centres must go without the benefits of relatively cheap heat and power and the many secondary industries which would consequently be attracted.

The action was an unexpected disappointment. It had appeared that the Westcoast Transmission Company, after its long efforts to secure export permission from Alberta and its heavy investment in line surveys and northern B.C. gas exploration, was virtually assured of U.S. approval.

In effect the decision will act as a narrow, protectionist device to exclude the Canadian product from the U.S. market—a policy quite the opposite of the greater freedom in reciprocal trade favored by President Eisenhower. It will add point to the recent words of Trade Minister C. D. Howe, who in commenting on trade relations with our neighbor made plain Canada's regret over the current U.S. trend toward protectionism.

The decision is also a serious blow to the accepted principle that Canada and the United States should develop the natural resources of the continent to the best joint advantage of the two countries.

It is estimated that natural gas reserves in the Peace River region are well over 4 trillion cubic feet. The pipeline from Alberta to the Pacific Coast would have tapped this vast reservoir and made it available to British Columbia, Washington and Oregon, as well as providing a market for part of the nearly 7 trillion cubic feet in Alberta wells. The northwestern U.S. market, as a result of the Commission's ruling, will be supplied from wells in Colorado and New Mexico. It is notable in this connection that the U.S. company's application had been opposed by California, on the grounds that the Colorado and New Mexico supply was needed in that state more than in the northwest.

At the moment there appears little hope that the Canadian development can proceed. With United States supplies of natural gas rapidly being depleted, it is difficult to understand the reasoning of the Federal Commission. It is apparent that the influence of U.S. industrialists was too strong in presenting the case for the southern producers. But the decision does not encourage favorable replies to U.S. applications for concessions from Canada. The currently discussed project which would deliver power from Canada's Yukon River to Alaskan interests is a case in point.

Teeth in Bill 29

A WAS SAID HERE WHEN IT was introduced into the Canadian Parliament, Bill 29—the so-called anti-dumping legislation—is only a disguised form of tariff protectionism, for which the Canadian consumer must pay. That opinion is now fully confirmed by the Government and the Opposition.

Under Bill 29 the minister of national revenue is empowered to fix arbitrary valuations on all imported manufactures for tariff purposes. An article may be selling in the United States, for example, at $1. But when it is imported into Canada the minister may value it at $2 or more and charge customs duty on the figure so fixed. Thus Parliament has delegated to the Government the power to make effective tariffs without visible limit.

The effects of this measure are now clear after four months of experience. Reporting to Parliament, Dr. J. J. McCann, minister of national revenue, shows that Bill 29 has drastically reduced imports of certain articles and raised their price substantially to the Canadian consumer.

In the first four months of this year imports of clothing from the United States amounted to 23,514 pieces as against 45,380 pieces in the same period of 1953. Bill 29 has been used to cut this business in half. In April, the last month of public record, the average price of these goods for duty purposes—as fixed by the minister—was $3.35, as against $2.97 in April, 1953. The price to the Canadian consumer was raised by an eighth.

Dr. McCann admits that no one can judge the full effects of the anti-dumping law on textiles and other products. No one knows what the volume of imports would have been if the law had not been enforced. But when the importer cannot be sure in advance what arbitrary prices the Government may fix, or what duties he must pay, it is obvious that his business will be more discouraged by these incalculable arrangements than by a known and fixed tariff.

Dr. McCann says, without giving figures, that shoes, purses, refrigerators and automobiles as well as textiles have been affected by Bill 29. No manufactured article is exempt from the minister's power of discretion in fixing tariffs from day to day.

Small wonder, then, that the protectionist Conservative Party has surveyed Dr. McCann's report and announces that it seems "to indicate a rather satisfactory situation."

Satisfactory, of course, to the Conservative Party and to certain Canadian manufacturers. But how satisfactory to the Canadian consumer who must pay the bill in the price of goods?

As Our Readers See It

ISLANDS FOR INDIVIDUALISTS

In a recent issue of the Times you state that Mrs. Levi Wilson is a typical product of the Gulf Islands.

With all due respect to Mrs. Wilson, your statement is absolutely wrong. In the first place there is no such thing as a typical Gulf Islander, because each and every resident is an individualist, much more so than the residents of Victoria or the rest of Vancouver Island.

This is true for two reasons. First, they would not have gone to the islands if they had not wished to live a life that was different. Secondly, the very isolation of the islands tends to accentuate the unusual characteristics of their inhabitants.

As to racial origin, well, there were a few similar to Mrs. Wilson, but the vast majority were of British ancestry. The early settlers on Saturna Island were of the blue-blooded aristocracy of England. On Pender the majority were of proud Scots descent, with some English and Irish. Maine and Galliano and Moresby people also originated in the Old Country, with a settlement of Japanese at Horton Bay. Some of the very first settlers on Salt Spring were escaped Negroes from the States and some were from Norway.

On the matter of education you are wrong again. The Gulf Islanders are as well educated a group of people as you will find anywhere in B.C. As one who was born and brought up on Pender and Saturna I can tell you we worked hard for our education, walking three miles to school mornings and three miles back at night, leaving home to write our entrance exams, and working in Victoria or Vancouver to earn our higher education. Some families who lived too far from schools brought private teachers out from the city.

Again you say Mrs. Levi's husband is a fisherman. This is not typical either for most of the early settlers were farmers. Some had mixed farms and several developed dairy herds, shipping cream to Victoria. Many of their sons went into the logging business, a number got jobs on the C.P.R. boats and some entered various professions but few took up fishing.

At the present time there are a large number of retired people on the islands. Those who have a small income or a little pension can live much better than anyone else.

MRS. F. J. GRANT.

THE BOOK AND PROPHECY

All these headlines, Mr. Snifkin remarked, would serve just as well today as they served last year and he wondered, indeed, why the newspapers, in the interests of economy, didn't save all their old type and use it again at appropriate intervals.

Nevertheless, Mr. Snifkin added hopefully, things do change, though few people are aware of it and no headlines record it. For example, what newspaper he asked, had noted that a new ice age is surely descending upon this northern flank of the continent? Yet anyone who possessed a thermometer or a normally sensitive skin must have observed the phenomenon of winter in the latter days of this June.

Mr. SNIFKIN held up the front page of the Gazette and showed me its leading headlines. In one of them an eminent Canadian statesman was quoted as saying, in a notable oration, that "The greatest danger of the hour is the lack of conscientiousness and personal responsibility." And who do you suppose uttered these elevating sentiments? None other than Premier Duplessis, of Quebec. Mr.

Snifkin remarked, last year's newspapers have a value seldom realized by the reader. They show, in short, that nothing really changes very much that life, for all its passing excitements, goes on as usual, from the summer cottage to the great centres of so-called events.

LOOSE ENDS

The Age of Ice

IN demolishing an entire summer cottage for the purpose of adding a bathroom and thus ending, at the moment, with only a large hole in the ground, my neighbor, Mr. Horace Snifkin, discovered among the ruins a copy of The Montreal Gazette for September 23, 1953.

I came upon him today seated beside a pile of rubble and poring intently over a publication not nine months old and yet, for all practical purposes, as antique as the Pyramids.

Mr. SNIFKIN remarked, last year's

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED

By STUART KEATE

Sir Ernest's Advice . . .

IN his address to Rotary here on Thursday, Sir Ernest MacMillan touched on a problem which must, at one time or another, befall every parent: what to do about the child who is "taking" the piano—when the piano so obviously isn't taking to him.

When Sir Ernest reached this point in his engaging discourse, he had me on the edge of my chair.

There is, in our house, a somewhat reluctant young genius who is driven to the piano stool daily by whip, bastinado, cutlass, and the lash. At the threat of grievous disfigurement he falls on the keys like a listless sot—stumbling, for an infield blooper, a look of sublime suffering on his face. What comes out is a dolorous piece of musical hay-nunny-nunny called "Peter Enjoys the Swing."

Peter wakes us in the morning; he drives me to my den at night. He has been on that damned swing now for six months.

I have been thinking it's about time he got off. But Sir Ernest (if I understand him correctly) thinks not.

"Perhaps one child in 10,000 can aspire to concert status," he says, "but that's not the point. By the simple act of making music (music?) a youngster acquires a better understanding and appreciation. He develops an ear. He learns to listen."

Sir Ernest cited his own experience as a youth grappling with art.

"I had no talent for drawing whatever," he told his audience. "But in trying to sketch what was in front of me I was compelled to see. I examined things with new interest. And that was valuable."

After the luncheon I thanked Sir Ernest for his address, and told him about the domestic problem. He listened politely and then advised: "Keep him at it." As an afterthought, he added:

"Of course, you could always switch him to a wind instrument."

Peter! Back on that swing, you little boaster!

As Dean Philip Beattie pointed out in a gracious introduction to Canada's "Mr. Music," Sir Ernest has crammed several careers into his comparatively short span on this earth.

At the age of nine, he was an organ soloist. By the time he was in his teens he had acquired top teaching certificates. Interned during World War I, he wrote prison-camp shows and music which he sent back home to further his academic career.

Since 1931 he has been conductor of the Toronto Symphony. He has built this organization into one of the fine orchestras of the West; but with the insight of all great artists, who are constantly striving for the unattainable, he says: "It is far from perfect—it never will be."

In addition to all this, Sir Ernest has won renown as an author and editor; as conductor of the Mendelssohn choir; as Dean of the Toronto Conservatory; and as narrator (in his light-hearted Christmas show) of "Tubby the Tuba."

Meeting Sir Ernest this week reminded me of the first time I interviewed him, about 20 years ago, for a Vancouver newspaper.

In order to lighten up the piece I asked Sir Ernest what he thought of the current sensation, Mr. Bing Crosby.

Sir Ernest, who is a pretty fair actor, looked puzzled. "Crosby . . . Crosby," he muttered. "Never heard of him."

The story, of course, made the front pages—which is another evidence of Sir Ernest's kindness to young reporters. On Wednesday night, after the concert, I intend to ask him his opinion of Liberace.

The National Assembly is composed of 503 Democrats, 31 Republican People's Party, five members of the right-wing Republican national party and two independents. The small Peasant Party did not obtain representation.

One Turkish political commentator observed after the election: "In eight years of democracy, we have virtually voted ourselves back to the single-party system."

21,000,000 POPULATION

This result is due largely to the nature of the Turkish electoral system. Turkey has a population of 21,000,000. There are 10,259,342 registered voters, but only 64 constituencies, each corresponding to a vilayet or department, the Turkish administrative division.

Voting is largely according to party lists in each department. This means that a difference of relatively few votes can decide the fate of a large number of seats. The largest constituency, Istanbul, returns 29 deputies; Ankara 21, and Izmir 20.

FAVORS LEADERS

The great advantage this system gave to the winning party was seen in 1950, the first election held since the Republican government introduced the electoral law which has served them so badly in two elections.

Then, the Democrats polled about 4,500,000 votes and won 410 seats, while the Republicans, with some 3,300,000 votes, won only 69 seats.

The number of deputies since has been raised from 487 to 541, under the electoral law which provides for one deputy for every 40,000 people. This increase represents a rise in the census figures since 1950.

Unofficial estimates of the popular vote in the May 2 election put the Republicans at about 37 per cent of the 8,000,000 votes cast.

The Republicans themselves claim 40 per cent, or 3,200,000 against 4,400,000 for the Democrats. If Turkey had a proportional representation system, this would have given the Republicans about 200 seats.

101-Year-Old Aunty Mary Lives to See Collie, Dies

STARKS, La. (AP)—"One day," 101-year-old Aunt Mary Stephens used to say, "Collie will come home and I'm going to live to see him if I have to live forever."

Collie—that was her boy. William Collie Stephens—left home at 31 to seek his fortune. He used to be with him on his way to work.

He was back again in their respective dressing rooms. In one of them it is whispered, "He cleared his throat while I was singing!"

The rumor again spreads like fire. The Met Opera House becomes Mount Vesuvius where one can hear the grumbling of the earth inside. "He pushed her . . . he cleared his throat!" If he got pushed first, she ought to get a push too, at least a little one! . . . If she whispered while he was singing, he ought to be allowed to clear at least his throat!"

At the third performance the tension is almost unbearable, but nothing untoward happens. Things on stage and in certain sections of the audience remain at a status quo. They remain thus until the end of the season, when one day both soprano and tenor happen to sing together at Ann Arbor, Mich., in a concert. Away from the tension-filled atmosphere of the Metropolitan Opera House they begin to relax, they smile and laugh together. All is well again.

CMA Convention Termned 'One of Most Successful'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's medical profession ended one of its most successful gatherings Friday with a review of the tremendous strides in medicine during the last half century.

The review was given in technical papers delivered before delegates attending closing sessions of the Canadian Medical Association's annual convention. The papers dealt with subjects ranging from medicine in the armed forces to obstetrics, ophthalmology, eye medicine—and carbon tetrachloride poisoning.

Dr. A. D. Kelly of Toronto, newly-appointed CMA general secretary, called the convention "one of the most successful" in the association's 87-year history.

One main development of the convention was the inauguration of a college of general practice for Canada's 8,000 family doctors, patterned after the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Delegates were told Friday that architectural plans now are being drawn up for a 350-

THEOLOGICAL FACTS

Refreshing Historical Story Based on Life of St. Bernard

Reviewed by TONY DICKASON

THE LAST OF THE FATHERS, by Thomas Merton; George J. McLeod Ltd., Toronto; $4.00.

Here is an intelligent precis. Though perhaps too spiritually technical for impact on once-a-week churchgoers and too general for the spiritually astute, it is yet historically refreshing.

The book's subject, St. Bernard of Clairvaux, was the "last of the fathers," and best-selling author, Father Merton of the Cistercian Order founded by the saint, presents a study of Bernard's life and a recent encyclical on the subject by Pius XII.

St. Bernard was an appealing saint, so much so that even Calvin and Luther took delight in the writings of the man who died eight centuries ago.

Central theme of his mystical theology was "union with God by pure love," and this love had a tremendous effect on shaping world history. The world of that time believed Peter had two swords, spiritual and temporal, and St. Bernard believed in wielding both because "saintly is born of conflict." The human and divine countered each other.

He sparked the second crusade. The religious order he founded is scattered around the world of today, theological facts.

THE STAMP CORNER

Snags Nearly Wrecked Life's Stamp Edition

By REG. NAIRNE

The proprietors of Life magazine have been agreeably surprised to find that their recent stamp number has proved to be just about their best seller of the year, for they had the collector referred to in the article as "Pacificus," to allow his great rarities to be photographed. It took all of a year to get his permission.

One big collector in Ceylon was even worse, as he absolutely refused to co-operate in any way whatsoever. And of course the exact matching of the colors of all the stamps shown strained the resources of even Life's printing staff.

Special permission had to be obtained from the Post Office Department to show stamps in natural colors, as there are very stringent regulations regarding this.

Through an oversight, the Secret Service, who should also have been consulted, were not notified, so when the magazine first appeared on the stands the Life offices were raided by "G Men," who intended to hold up the entire edition!

Fortunately things were smoothed over and all was well. The British edition, which goes out to 70 English-speaking countries, has been delayed owing to similar restrictions.

It is expected to appear this month.

New Picture Of Amazing Pompadour

MADAME DE POMPADOUR, by Nancy Mitford. 260 pages and 22 illustrations. British Books, Toronto, $3.50.

REVIEWED BY HUMPHRY DAVY

If you pick up this book you will read it from cover to cover and will be sorry to put it down. It is not only entertaining and light reading, but throws new light on one of the most famous and fascinating women in the 18th century.

Nancy Mitford in a clear and straightforward manner vividly portrays Madame de Pompadour, the mistress of Louis XV, and who greatly influenced the French court of the day. She died in 1764 at the age of 42.

NON-FICTION

"The Power of Positive Thinking," Norman Vincent Peale.

"But We Were Born Free," Elmer Davis.

"Minutes of the Last Meeting," Gene Fowler.

"The Mind Alive," H. A. and Bonaro Overstreet.

"Forty Plus and Fancy Free," Emily Kimbrough.

This is by no means the first time a book reviewer has found himself looking over two or more historical novels published by Canadians at almost the same time. In a more populous country, with a heavier output of books per annum this would not be so very remarkable, but in a land like ours, with its still pitiful small total number of novels per year, it is perhaps significant.

Surely it does not need to be proved once again that Canadians have a strange penchant for removing themselves by several generations from the stuff they put into their fiction. Starting as early as Gilbert Parker, I suppose, and going right along through Ralph Connor and Mazo de la Roche and Tom Costello, almost all our best-selling writers of fiction have had very little to do with work which deals with the contemporary and the immediate.

BOOK TALK

THIS AMAZING PROVINCE

B.C. Forest so Dense Travel Is Impossible

By C. P. LYONS

"Back to the sticks" is a phrase often used to describe pioneer settlements or the great hinterland of the province. Perhaps the full meaning isn't clear to those persons who are not familiar with this part of southern B.C., consisting of high mountain plateaux along with the northern two-thirds of our vast domain.

Here almost endless slopes and benches, clothed in the verdant green of lodgepole pine, stretch away to the distant horizon. There may be other native trees with a wider range than this "jackpine" but it's safe to say that in sheer number of trees it is the most prolific one we have.

Often there are more than 50,000 trees to the acre or greater than one to every square foot of ground. This growth forms a low forest so dense that travel is virtually impossible.

History Has Wide Appeal

I have often speculated on this and wondered if it means that the Canadian, whom kind people call cautious and others call timid, really does feel more at ease when he is writing about something which occurred in the comfortable past, something which cannot rise up to plague him in the form of an imagined counterpart or a cousin of the heroine at the first literary tea he attends.

It might be.

It might also be that the Canadian, in writing as in so many other fields, is a shrewd operator than the rest of the world has realized. "Can it be that out smart writers are the kind of folk who sit down, calculate the market and say sharply, 'Well, if that's what they want, I'll give it to them.' Certainly it must be more than coincidence that, with the exception of Stephen Leacock, all our major financial successes in fiction writing have been set in the past. (The Jahn series is sort of art'n' but the most popular ones were those which were not contemporary.)

I for one am not too happy about either of these explanations, but the evidence demands that they be considered. Mayhap the two most recent contributions to this field may provide some clues.

The two books represent two quite different traditions in historical writing—but they come together—as does all historical fiction—in the word romance.

Miss Butler's book is romantic love and Mr. Clou's is romantic adventure. But please do not get the idea from this that Miss Butler's is sexy and Mr. Clou's just good clean fun. As a matter of fact, again following a fine established tradition, neither author sprinkles a very large salting of sex in his book.

ENCOURAGED ARTS

The greatness of Madame de Pompadour is that she encouraged creative arts. She understood and loved beauty, which is more than can be said for many of the ruling class of her day. She was the benefactor of poets, artists and writers and whenever she could give them a helping hand, she did.

Desmond Flower of Cassell & Co., Gouzenko's English and Canadian publisher and editor, has compared it to the novels of Dostoevsky and Tolstoy because of the forcefulness of its plea for a return to spiritual values, its study of normal conflict, and its deep compassion for the Russian people.

It is a big book of 672 pages, about 300,000 words. George Norton, the American publisher of the book says it is "boiling with action and swarming with sharply delineated characters from all levels of society."

Its theme is the ugly side of the struggle between good and evil. Its setting is Rostov-on-the-Don and its central character Mikhael Gorin, based on the life of Maxim Gorki, the "stormy petrel" of the revolution and great humanist writer.

It is hard to imagine what the French court would have been without Madame Pompadour. It certainly would not have been any better morally or otherwise. She stands above all other women of her sex, in intellect and in understanding. Above all she was human.

GRUBER SAYS

Famous Conductor Revives Old Memories of Early Toronto Days

This past week revived some cherished memories for me. Sitting in, as I did, on Sir Ernest MacMillan's rehearsals with our own Victoria Symphony Orchestra here, I was taken back to my days in Toronto, where I was allowed to spend countless hours in Massey Hall watching Sir Ernest in rehearsal with his own magnificent Toronto Symphony Orchestra, watching one of the great living conductors build a

It was there that I became aware of what was involved in becoming a conductor. While Sir Ernest's was my teacher in the formal sense, it was, never the less, from him and through him that I learned more than from any other source, more than during my thousands of hours of formal conservatory lessons, and more from one or two other celebrated conductors with whom I studied for relatively short periods.

I have certainly no reason to believe that Sir Ernest would wish me to make him responsible for my doings as a conductor; if I were to thank him for all he has taught me, he might very well reply, as did the professor who was thanked similarly by a student upon his graduation—"Please do not mention such a trifle!"

I count myself, however,

There is quite a lot of informed criticism in Canada, he feels. A lot that is informed, too. "I wouldn't like to do it," he says with a twinkle.

Vincent Price's role in RKO's "Son of Sinbad" is probably his most unusual to date. He isn't a villain for a change and he gets the girl (Mari Blanchard) besides.

Few first-rate orchestras appear at the wave of a magic wand, as did the NBC orchestra, he points out. The Victoria Symphony orchestra, like most others, has had to grow, is growing and will continue to grow," Sir Ernest comments. "What can stop it? Only lack of funds—lack of public support!"

'SEVEN' BAD ENOUGH; COULD HAVE BEEN '35'

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (UP) — Even a duffer groans when he gets a seven but former Open king, Lawson Little, of Pebble Beach, Calif., was actually happy about one he took on the first hole at Baltusrol.

It could have been a 35—for one hole! Just before teeing off, Little told his caddy to clean up his clubs. Then he hit his drive into a water hazard, and when he arrived at the spot the expert bag-toter had all 14 clubs in the drink, washing them. A stickler for the rules, Little reported to the referee—which could have tagged him for two strokes per club.

The slightly-dazed Lawson took a seven on the hole and, because there was no intent and the club-cleaning was done quite a ways from his ball, the seven was what he got on his card.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

The track greats of the province gather here tonight and there could be more, than one British Empire Games champion.

Former Olympic coach Bruce Humber and his staff have gone all out to make the Island championships as rosy a track plum as can be found outside the Games themselves.

The meeting of the Commonwealth greats in Vancouver is only six short weeks away, but for the provincial aspirants to track and field glory, the B.E.G. trials are virtually around the next corner.

This is the tune-up for the trials and a tremendously busy season for the thincards. And each and every appearance will be watched closely from now on.

Times and standards have been set as a guide to British Empire Games' selection and the guys and gals who show to the best advantage will get the nod. Those times will be set here or they could be set at the Canadian trials at Vancouver, July 9 and 10.

Local eyes should be focused on Ted Whan, Bob Hutchison and Terry Tobacco.

In Humber's qualified opinion these rank as the most likely city candidates for B.E.G. selection. Others may surprise. At least they won't be denied the opportunity. Meanwhile before this comes off the press Les Stockell may have qualified for the B.E.G. marathon berth. The Victoria school teacher runs in Hamilton today.

Whan, who went to the finals of the U.S. Small Colleges meet recently, goes his best lick in the quarter-mile. He is a tremendous competitor. And it's Humber's theory that both Whan and Terry Tobacco, the Canadian juvenile champ, could be named to the mile relay team if they don't place in the 440 itself.

Teddy's Right and Terry's Close

Whan is at peak form right now. Tobacco is approaching his. And being one of the standout prospects in the Dominion, it is conceivable that the Canadian juvenile 100 and 220-yard recordholder might even make a place for himself in the 220.

Hutchison is a former Olympic standard bearer. He has done little real running up until recently this year, and his best is in the 220. But to do it he's got to better the prescribed standard of 22 seconds. The desired time in the quarter-mile is 49 seconds, and Whan and Tobacco are both capable of meeting it.

Phil Matson is another who could make it. The former Oak Bay star can rip a tidy mile, but he's got to beat the time of 4:15 and defending champ Bill Parnell to earn the chance. His best this year has been 4:18 which isn't far off par.

And so this will be the British Empire Games preview with over 100 entries and the best in track that can be secured. It's worth a tumble. For besides the locals there are at least a dozen mainland stars—Bruce Springbett, Louella Law, Alice Whitty, Jack Hutchins, Jack Hamilton, to mention a few—who are definite prospects for the Games team.

And word is out, too, that Peter Salmon is making designs on a spot with the swim team. He's always been top flight, when right, and if anyone can put him right, Peter himself can by his own determination.

Games Belong to Us All—as Canadians

And now comes the question of Canadian pride. There's still a $90,000 nut to crack to assure the British Empire Games of financial success. And with B.C. the host province in the greatest sports spectacle of the era, it seems only fitting that the citizenry pack behind the venture and put it over.

Certainly Victoria will benefit indirectly, if not directly, from the Games and the fund committee at work in the city is only too willing to accept material evidence of the pride in the past and present achievement of city and British Columbia athletes and the world-wide magnitude of the Games as reflected towards the province in particular and the Dominion in general.

Because after all, we are Canadians and helping to do a job for Canada. Percy Williams didn't only belong to Vancouver when he was a double winner at Amsterdam. He was one of us all—as Canadians. Similarly the Empire Games this year will belong to everyone, and more particularly because of their close proximity they should appeal specifically to us in the province.

Local Representative Cricket Side Selected

The Victoria representative cricket side for the first of two annual matches between Victoria and Vancouver, which will be played at Beacon Hill Park on Thursday, July 4, has been selected.

Named to the team were: R. Mainwaring (Oak Bay, captain), A. L. Bristow (Oak Bay, vice-captain), D. Day (Alcos), J. M. Moss (Alcos), E. Parkins (Oak Bay), C. Priestley (Albion), J. Richards (Five Cs), P. Seale (Sparks), J. Sparks (Oak Bay), B. Twamley (Alcos); 12th man: J. Sherratt (Incogs).

This side shows few changes from the side which was victorious at Beacon Hill Park in the second of last season's two games. Mainwaring is again captain, and he with Parkins, Day, Seale and Sparks, provide most of the batting strength.

English Soccer Writers Take Crack at Rep Side

LONDON (AP)—British sports writers used some scalding phrases Friday to describe the performance of the English soccer squad in allowing Belgium to gain a 4-4 draw at Basle.

The Daily Herald described the British players as "lazy-looking and completely without ideas in the first part of the game... English football suffered another deadly blow in Europe."

Blood-Spattered But Unbowed

Heavyweight boxing champion Rocky Marciano successfully defended his title this week, winning a 15-round verdict over courageous challenger Ezzard Charles in one of the bloodiest heavy-

Harlem Clowns to Play Softball Series Here

Local followers of the Men's Senior A Softball League are in for a big treat the weekend of July 3 and 4.

Harlem Clowns will play a three-game series with the three top local teams as of July 2.

The Clowns this year are managed by Al "Runt" Pullins who is probably remembered more for his basketball antics than for softball.

This will be the first appearance of the Clowns to this city but some members have been here with the Iowa City Ghosts.

The Ghosts disbanded this year and joined forces with the Clowns.

Familiar names in the lineup are "Shorty" Buckner and Poppy Smith.

A well-known personality of pro football circles is also a member of the team, Joe "Jet" Perry, plugging fullback of the San Francisco 49ers is keeping in shape by playing softball during the off season and will be here.

Pullins is high on the pros.

Pot all indoor plants according to their requirements.

Discontinue cutting asparagus, allowing crowns to build up for next season.

Hoe and cultivate between plants and along rows to aerate soil, conserve moisture and remove weeds.

Remove the old flower heads from lilac as they fade.

Q—How can we remove a water stain from the top of a maple desk?—Mrs. B.G.M.

A—Rub gently with a paste made of finely powdered pumice and linseed oil. Apply with a soft cloth and rub only briefly, then inspect to see whether the spot is gone. Continue procedure until it is removed. With any such treatment there is always the chance that the finish may be damaged, but very gentle rubbing may prevent it.

Panel Dresses Fireplace Walls

Man-made innovations in wall-paneling materials are all the rage these days, but natural-umber paneling still retains its popularity.

The installation of either kind of wall covering would be simplicity itself if all rooms were built like boxes—without wall projections or openings. But where the smooth expanse of wall is broken by doors, windows or fireplaces, complications arise.

BEST AND ATTRACTIVE

In the case of a fireplace wall, the answer is to start paneling directly over the fireplace. Since paneling there catches the eye first, it should start at the centre line of the fireplace and go in both directions away from the centre. The best and most attractive boards should be used over the fireplace.

To prepare the walls for natural-wood paneling all molding, baseboards, picture or plate rails, etc., are removed. Then it is necessary to locate the wall studs behind the plaster.

Do this by driving a nail into the plaster until a stud is struck. When two adjacent studs are found the distance between them can be determined and the rest will be easy to locate. Studs are commonly placed 16, 18 or 24 inches apart, centre-to-centre.

Now draw lines on the wall along stud centres from floor to ceiling. Using the stud lines as guides, nail three horizontal strips of 1x3-inch lumber to the wall. Nail one at the base of the wall, one along the top at the ceiling, and one level with the top of the fireplace mantel.

FLAT AGAINST STRIPS

If the wall is perfectly true, with no lumps or depressions, the nailing strips are easy to place. But if the wall is uneven it may be necessary to drive wedges behind them in spots so that the paneling will lie flat against the strips.

Therefore, it is best to set the strips in place temporarily with just a few nails and test them with a straight-edged board. Then fasten the strips to studs with six-penny common nails long enough to go through the strip, plaster and into studding.

Then, starting at the exact centre line of the fireplace, fasten wood paneling to nailing strips. Four-penny common nails or No. 6 wood screws may be used at the top and bottom of each panel, since these will be covered later with molding. For exposed nailing use finishing nails, which have tapered heads.

COUNTERSINK SCREWS

Where screws are used, countersink them. To accommodate either screws or common nails, predrill holes in panels. The same diameter as screw or nail shanks, the holes reduce the chance of splitting and spoiling a beautiful board. It isn't necessary to predrill holes for finishing nails.

Your fireplace can be made the centre of interest in your living room by the addition of warm, elegant wood paneling.

An attractive stock molding is then added all around the fireplace, and at ceiling and floor level. Molding gives a finished look and conceals small gaps and imperfections in the carpentry work—such as uneven lengths of paneling or ragged edges where a panel has been cut to fit around the side of the fireplace.

Since the installation of paneling was started at the centre line of the fireplace, boards at either side of the opening end up equal in width. This adds to the professional-quality look of the finished job and also simplifies the panel-board installation on the wall as a whole.

Tariff Change To Boost Price Of Plastic Tile

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Reporter

OTTAWA Householders in Canada will pay more for imported plastic floor or wall tile in future, as a result of an increase in the customs tariff, inserted by the government after the budget was brought down, and now approved by Parliament.

The higher tariff on wall and floor tiling, imported from the U.S., will mean an estimated increase in the retail price of imported plastic tiles of from one to three cents per tile, depending upon their size and quality.

This was one of three tariff increases inserted into the tariff schedule after the budget was introduced in Parliament April 6. Tariff increases now approved by the House were not contained in the original tariff schedule which was part of the budget.

The floor and wall tile tariff in the act amending the Customs tariff which was considered by the committee, is fixed at 20 per cent for imports from "most favored nations." That includes imports from the United States, the source of most of Canada's imported synthetic tile for floors and walls.

The rate of 20 per cent was the rate collected on imported plastic tile up until November, 1953.

RE-CLASSIFIED

At that time the importers produced certificates from chemists to show that the wall and floor tile of plastic came within the new synthetic resins tariff schedule established by the budget on April 8, 1952. Following these representations from the importers the department of national revenue reclassified the imported tiles under the new tariff schedule so that they came in free, or were dutiable at 10, 15 and 20 per cent, depending upon size, color and quality.

The new change in the tariff which has now been passed by the Commons restores the previous high rate of 20 per cent across the board for imports of all floor and wall tile manufactured of synthetic resins.

Two Saanich police cars, reporters and photographers rushed out to Murray Drive early today when a call came in that a man was desperately injured there.

A passerby had found a man prostrate in the street. In a hurried examination for injuries, the good Samaritan found a hard "bone" poking out of the man's chest.

Not daring to risk moving his patient he put in the emergency call.

Police disclosed the street-sleeping was an all-night reveler. The distorted "bones" turned out to be a plaster cast protecting some ribs injured earlier.

Keith Slessor hopes for good fortune.

$2,000 OR TWO CENTS

Valuable Stamp Turns Up In Ladysmith Collection

LADYSMITH—Fortune or phony?

That's the burning question for 16-year-old Keith Slessor.

A recent issue of Life magazine carried a display of rare stamps in full color. Keith has one in his collection which the magazine listed as being worth $2,000.

The catch is that this particular stamp—an Austrian newspaper stamp issued about 50 years ago—is easy to counterfeit, and Keith has been told that number of excellent but worthless copies are in circulation.

Two years ago an aunt of his took the stamp to a dealer in Seattle to see if it was genuine. The dealer said he could not tell, and asked permission to send it to an expert in San Francisco. Not wishing to place it in strange hands, she returned it to Keith.

VALUE INCREASING

He plans on taking it to an expert himself some day, but he is in no hurry because the stamp has been increasing in value ever since he got it—if it is the real thing.

He is not sure where he acquired it, but thinks it was in an assortment of stamps given to him about six years ago by an uncle. He has no idea where the uncle may have come by it.

A year after he received this batch of stamps, he was looking through a 1937 stamp catalogue and found this particular issue listed at $800.

In 1950 he saw it in a 1948 catalogue listed at about $1,600. He is not sure of the exact amount because it was listed in

Nanaimo City Property Now Up for Rental

NANAIMO—With the opening of Simpson's-Sears, Thursday and present construction of Safeway's new store close by, the city has decided to rent its property at intersection of Winfield Crescent and Nicol Street, known as the car shops."

Offers for rental of the property are open until June 25. Offer by the city is invited for a six months' period only.

Several offers to purchase have been made. Mayor George Muir said he thought it might be leased out as a parking lot to take the overflow from the two big stores. Business section of Nanaimo has moved south and east with opening of the large Simpson's unit, and pressure for parking space has increased.

Reeve Pickles Explains Bus Route Change

Convenient for Bay Residents

Reeve Sydney Pickles objected vigorously Friday to an announcement concerning moving of the Brentwood bus terminal, which he said did not tell "the whole story."

"The West Saanich bus terminal at the Mill Bay ferry wharf, has always stopped on Verdier Avenue close to the wharf," he said. "It still stops close to the wharf. The new location is only about 165 yards from the old—not a long walk—and the up-hill grade is quite moderate."

The new location was established owing to difficulty of backing large buses to the old terminal, especially when traffic was heavy in the summer and autumn fishing season.

"This bus has, until a few months ago, always traveled up Verdier Avenue. It is again using the original and official Verdier Avenue route. The recent switch to Peden Lane and Stelly's Cross Road, both narrow side roads which were never constructed to carry heavy bus traffic, was made without any reference to Central Saanich council."

PRIVATE REQUEST

"This action, I believe, was taken on the private request of a small number of Brentwood residents. The breakup of both Peden Lane and Stelly's Cross Road by this heavy bus traffic would constitute an unfair tax burden on the Central Saanich taxpayers as a whole. Also, a number of residents on Verdier Avenue were deprived of convenient bus service by this unofficial change from the original officially established route."

The Central Saanich works superintendent reported to me as reeve and chairman of the works committee that Peden Lane and the portion of Stelly's Crossroad being used by the bus were both too narrow and not built for heavy bus traffic and likely would break up under such use."

2 BLONDES, 4 BRUNETTES VYING FOR DUNCAN TITLE

DUNCAN—To date, two blondes are competing against four brunettes for the title of 1954 Cowichan Lumber Queen to reign over Duncan 1st celebrations.

The winner will receive $100 and become Miss Cowichan and an entrant for the Miss PNE contest at Vancouver's province-wide exhibition in August.

The local contest will continue until June 26, although later entries will be considered.

Norma Brown and Marjorie Lowe, blondes, are both bank clerks. The brunettes are Betty Gardam, Mill Bay, school teacher; Sheila O'Brien, store clerk; Neila Thrift, telephone operator, and Peggy Boyle, construction firm clerk.

The contest is being run on the lines of the PNE contest. Girls will appear at a civic dinner and make an individual appearance before the queen is named and crowned at the evening show July 1. W. L. "Bus" Matthews is contest manager.

Son of Mrs. Good and the late J. H. Good, he was born in Nanaimo, and was a prominent athlete in his youth. He was employed in banks in B.C. and the prairies, but on the death of his father in 1929 he became manager of the furniture business.

Mr. Good was a member of Doric Lodge, AF and AM, Nanaimo Shrine Club and Gizeh Temple, BPOE in Nanaimo, and Nanaimo Golf Club.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are three brothers, John, Harold and Lionel, all in Nanaimo, and a sister in Prince Rupert.

$20,000 Telephone Program Under Way on Gulf Islands

A large telephone expansion program for North Pender, Saanich and Mayne Islands is now under way.

Designed to carry service to many of those now on the waiting list for telephones on those islands, the project consists of the erection of aerial cable, wire and pole lines.

Total cost will be in excess of $20,000.

Foreman William MacDougall and his crew of six men are working in conjunction with the resident district repairman, Les Garrick.

Approximately 120 poles are being placed. The largest piece of cable is a 1,200-foot length containing 50 pairs of wires.

In addition to this, other cables and well over 40 miles of open wire will be strung.

Work started early in June and the whole job is scheduled for completion about mid-August.

Mrs. E. Clark New PTA Head

NANAIMO—Combined PTA groups, 19 in all, held their annual meeting here Thursday at the Malaspina Hotel, and elected Mrs. E. Clark as their joint president.

Kristin Olsen was named president of the Nanaimo and District Teachers' Association.

Jack Rayers, chairman of School Board District 68, welcomed the delegates. He said without the concerted assistance of the teachers' associations, the school board feared its building by-law would not have passed. He deplored the failure of recent Saanich and Salmon school building by-laws.

"We here are most fortunate in having an efficient, active PTA in the district," he said.

DROODLES

(See Title Below)

Lifesavers are small lumps of candy with expensive holes in them. The holes are expensive because wholesale holes come in only two sizes: Doughnut and Bagel. These larger holes must be cut down by complicated machines so they can fit the little Lifesavers and there's a lot of waste involved. Various types of creatures enjoy Lifesavers: dogs, horses, politicians, children, goldfish, Mario Lanza and, of course, Bugs. But then, Bugs seem to enjoy everything. Almost anywhere you look these days you can see a bug enjoying himself. I'm not sure this is right. Perhaps if we put out a line of DDT-flavored Lifesavers it might solve the problem. (All this is excellent free publicity for the Lifesaver people but I have a feeling they won't think so.)

PROMOTION to the position of city traffic manager, Trans-Canada Air Lines in Victoria, is announced today for E. S. (Ted) Booth, former manager of traffic services. The new position was created because of increasing TCA services in and out of this city. Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver are the only other cities with city traffic managers. Mr. Booth has been with the air line since 1946, following war service with the RCAF.

Saanich Union Protest May Change Board

Complaints Filed Against Chairman

Possibility was seen today that Labor Minister Lyle Wicks may appoint a new conciliation board to attempt to settle the dispute between Saanich Municipal Employees' Association and Saanich council.

A new board may be appointed as the result of union protests against the old board's wage recommendations and the refusal of Saanich council to either accept or reject the board's awards.

The board recommended a two-cents-an-hour wage increase to laborers and refused all other wage boosts.

HAS POWER

A labor official said today the minister has the power under the new Labor Act to appoint a new conciliation board if he believed it is in the best interest of both parties. Some Saanich councillors indicated they would be in favor of such a move.

Meanwhile, union officials reported they have filed two complaints with the labor department against J. A. Byers, chairman of the conciliation board. They have charged Mr. Byers as being anti-labor and with "dozing off" during conciliation hearings.

STUDY UNDERWAY

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks has been advised of the employees' protests and has the matter under investigation, a spokesman for the labor department said.

Meanwhile, there is no indication of Saanich council resuming its wage negotiations with municipal employees since the union applied for a strike vote early this week.

The labor department is expected to approve the strike vote next week, unless the minister decides the wage dispute should be referred again to a new conciliation board. If this is carried out, strike action will be delayed for more than a month.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—While watching the televised Army-McCarthy hearings and the present Seattle investigations I have been interested in the stenotype method used to record testimony. Can you tell me if the operator types shorthand symbols or a form of speed-writing?—C.B.M.

A.—The stenotype was invented by a Canadian as long ago as 1844. Later forms of the machine are known as stenograph and by other names. The principle on which these machines operate is a grouping or combination of letters, instead of the printing of a single letter at a time, as with the typewriter. An operator who has thoroughly mastered the machine is able to write at great speed. It is stated to be the fastest method of recording speech. After the record of a trial or inquiry session has been taken by an expert, others sometimes work on the mass of symbols and extend them into ordinary English. The system is used in court reporting throughout the U.S., but has not been adopted in Canada, where shorthand writing is still the method.

Anyone wishing a question answered or to send the problem to the "Ask The Times" address may do so. The address is "Ask The Times," Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions and answers of a matter of fact and of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

Mail—any kind of mail—is gratifying to those who write for a living.

Writing, like other types of creative effort, is probably at bottom an expression of the ego and an acknowledgement that the expression has found response, whether favorable or otherwise, is, in a sense, fulfillment.

This is by way of appreciation of comment on last week's column.

To those who liked it—thanks. To those who were critical, feeling that our present way of life doesn't deserve such hard strictures, thanks also, and a final rebuttal:

What we have come to us by speaking out of conscience, by refusing to accept any "ultimate."

Most welcome was a letter from Mrs. Ethel Tull, 246 Crease Avenue, containing a thought which should have wider circulation.

For that reason, the body of the letter follows:

"It puzzles me a little when almost all men praise the work of the Salvation Army and Alcoholics Anonymous (quite rightly), that they do not realize that the work done by these bodies should be the recognized work of every Christian and every Church; only that every sinner (and that means each one of us), whether rich and occupying a position of leadership, or poor and lowly, should be treated as in need of change, and every sin that separates men from each other and from God as having equal importance and gravity, and needing the same treatment as Alcoholism.

"1. Acknowledgment of a man's own helplessness to save himself from his besetting sins.

"2. Willingness to put in the power of a Supreme Being, and to daily seek for and obey His guidance.

"3. Willingness to put right, where possible, anything in the past that has hurt or defrauded another.

"4. An earnest effort to fag up to life with absolute honesty, purity, unselfishness, and love, and to help others to do the same by standing by those with similar difficulties to overcome, and never letting them down until they obtain the victory, and can stand firm, with the guidance of God and the teaching and strength of the Holy Spirit.

"Sin is the disease; Jesus Christ is the cure; the result is a miracle."

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Famed Scottish Preacher At First Baptist June 27

In the absence of the regular minister, Rev. G. R. Easter, who is in Calgary for two weeks, a distinguished visitor will occupy the pulpit at First Baptist Church Sunday, July 27.

He is Rev. W. J. Grant of Paisley, Scotland, who is in Canada as special speaker at the convention of the Baptist Union of Western Canada which was held recently in Saskatoon.

A native of Scotland, Rev. Mr. Grant carried on a great ministry at Watford on the outskirts of London throughout the war years.

Since then he has been in his present pastorate at Paisley where he ministers in the beautiful Coates Memorial Baptist Church.

Staunch Baptists, the Coates family, members of the famous thread, erected the church in memory of its founder when he died.

Although familiar to churches in Eastern Canada, this is Rev. Mr. Grant's first visit to the Pacific Coast. He has a number of speaking engagements both in the United States and elsewhere in Canada on leaving here.

To Love and To Cherish ...

The words of the wedding service echo across the days of June as young couples exchange vows in churches throughout the city. Many weddings have already taken place and as many more vows will be spoken before month's end. Lady Allenby Coming to Canada

LONDON (CP)—Viscountess Allenby of Meggido and Felixstowe has one aim firmly in mind for her visit to Canada this summer.

"I want to make a good impression," she said in an interview. "I'd like to leave behind at least a trace of goodwill."

The viscountess, who is making her first trip to Canada, is vice-president of the 3,000-strong Kent St. John Ambulance Association Cadets. She heads a committee planning the first postwar youth camp for Kent, and she is keen to study similar camps in North America. Lady Allenby will land in Montreal

July 1, leave Canada July 22 and fly home July 27—"in time to pick my son up at Eton for his summer vacation."

Her chief regret throughout the trip will be that she has not the time to cross Canada to the west coast.

Lady Allenby, whose husband is the nephew of late Field Marshal Viscount Allenby of First World War fame, will be on radio and television in the Voice of St. John. The Order of St. John is the oldest order of chivalry in Britain and the sovereign is always at the head. Princess Margaret takes a personal interest in the society and Countess Mountbatten is an active member.

St. Aidan's Scene of Afternoon Wedding

This afternoon in St. Aidan's United Church, when Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, Majestic Drive, repeated promises with Thomas Belcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Belcher, Bield, Man. Rev. J. L. Clearihue conducted the ceremony.

Tall standard baskets of yellow and white gladioli and mauve iris decorated the church. Father of the bride gave her in marriage. The bride is a graduate in home economics at University of British Columbia, and the groom is a graduate of the Diploma Course in Agriculture, University of Manitoba.

A ballerina-length gown of white nylon bengaline with lace-trimmed neckline was worn by charming bride with a small shrug jacket to match. Her headdress was a lace Juliet cap from which misted a shoulder-length veil of net. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, and red roses and white gladioli in cascade design formed her bouquet.

As matron of honor, Mrs. William Ruby wore a full-skirted gown of yellow nylon with yellow headress and mauve accessories. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and mauve gladioli. Victor Thompson was best man.

At a reception, held in home of the bride's parents, George Edwards proposed the toast to the bride. Pink and white streamers and white wedding bells decorated the rooms, and the wedding cake was surrounded by red roses.

Mother of the bride wore a rose dressmaker suit with navy accessories and pink roses, en corsage, to receive guests.

For traveling on honeymoon to the Okanagan, the bride wore a check suit with red and white accessories and coat of textured gray wool. She had a corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Belcher will live at Birch River, Man.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Traveling by Car This Year?
Take This Along—For Sure!

By PENNY SAVER

Most folks owning a car take it with them on holiday. A wise thing to do; for it saves money and it's a lot more fun when you can mosey around the country at will, stopping here and there just as you please. There's no time schedule to follow when you travel this way, and one can truly relax and let the rest of the world go by.

However, car travel means that you must do much more planning. Things like maps, a flashlight, tools and so forth must all be remembered. And if you are going rugged and camping out, it means bedding, a supply of food, a gas stove, and on and on.

There is one item that many people don't even consider, not because they don't think it's important, but because they don't think of it, period. Suggest it to them and they gasp:

"Oh, yes of course. Why didn't I think of it?"

I mean a first aid kit. It is something you should never be without on any motor trip, for so many things can happen. You're bound to have two or three minor accidents and who knows? You might even have a serious one! Whether brother cuts her finger on a tin of pork and beans or whether you come across a serious accident that requires temporary first aid, you'll be glad you were prepared.

Manufactured just for you is the autokit—a compact metal box containing complete first aid equipment. There is a first aid instruction booklet, a yard square of sterile gauze, absorbent cotton, three rolls of bandage gauze, two paper cups, adhesive tape, swabs, burn ointment, iodine, aromatic spirits of ammonia, band-aids, scissors—and all for just $3.20. It's not too large to store in the glove compartment of the car.

Even if you're not planning on motor travel, it would be wise to take along a first aid kit on a lengthy trip. For $1.60 you can purchase a travel kit which is a neat little metal box of first aid supplies, much smaller than the autokit. It would take up very little space in your suitcase. In this kit you get the first aid instruction booklet, a roll of adhesive tape, band-aids, mercuro-chrome, gauze bandage in two sizes, and sterile gauze dressings.

In Step With Style

For the mature bride or for a second marriage, Pierre Balmain's two-piece suit of champagne embroidered Alencon lace is ideal. It's made over matching silk taffeta with fitted jacket and narrow skirt. Jacket has deep horseshoe neckline, scalloped edge, is filled in with removable gilet and bow of silk organza.

By KITTY DIXON

Every June there is a spring pleat to best advantage. This kind of more mature bride gown is also available in pastel blue.

Delicate lace is another popular material with the mature bride. A gown with fitted bodice of lace over taffeta in soft, yet rich horizon-blue tone with skirt of film net featuring wide V insert is flatteringly slimming. The bodice extends into a V to correspond with skirt, and is topped with a dainty see-through lace jacket having three-quarter-length sleeves and a Peter Pan collar. It is fastened at the neckline with a single, covered button.

Langford—Presentation of shield and silver cups to winners in Langford School sports was made by Miss Ruth King, principal, at a meeting of Langford PTA held recently in the community hall. Trophies had been purchased for the school by the PTA. There was capacity attendance and installation of officers took place, former PTA president, L. Clarke, now of S. J. Willis' School, being installing officer. Corsages presented to new officers, were made by Miss L. Savory, who was thanked by president, Mrs. David P. Gardner. The program included a talk by Mrs. A. Payne, grade 1 teacher on preparing the child for school. A demonstration by some of her pupils followed.

For the bride who decides upon a pink wedding dress, this gown of lace and net over taffeta. The fitted bodice of lace has tiny self-covered buttons down the front and the fold-back collar forms a V neckline. Sleeves are long and are of traditional lily point style. The same lace material extends to a false redingote which separates in scallops at front to reveal a froth of tiny net accordion pleats.

All gowns mentioned above are in the $59.95 price range.

If you have great difficulty in finding a perfect fit, select the dress that fits perfectly across the shoulders and is too big in spots. Then it can be altered to fit with a minimum of expense.

AS WE LIVE

Sister's 'Bossiness'
Irks Rest of Family

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Some people set themselves up as self-appointed guardians of their families and try to tell every member what to do and how to do it. A woman writes:

"We were a big family—eight children to be exact—and my mother had her hands full with the housework and the care of us. My oldest sister was my mother's helper and took charge of us almost as much as my mother did. She has never married and since my mother and father have passed away she has been working."

"She still wants to have her finger in every family pie. All the rest of us are married and when she comes to see us she tries to tell us what to do, how to run our homes, etc. Naturally, we all resent this, but we feel sorry for her because we know she gave up her chances to marry when she was younger to help our parents. We would like your advice about what to do about this bossiness without hurting our older sister's feelings."

"A. Why not tell your sister—in a joking way so you won't hurt her feelings—that you are no longer children and that her job of taking care of you ended when you grew up and were married. She may not realize how much she bosses you, and this will make her stop and think."

"As your mother's helper, she had to be the "boss" when she was taking care of you. Children will obey an adult who is not a "boss," but when the person who is taking care of them is close to their own age, she must use different tactics. Otherwise, the children would get out of hand."

"Your sister had so many years of bossing that she has gotten into the habit of it. However, that does not alter the fact that it is unpleasant for all of you and bad for her, too. It not only makes her less welcome in your homes, but it can be a great handicap to her in her job."

"Any habit can take such hold on the person that he does not realize what he is doing. I am sure your sister does not appreciate how bossy she really is. You must open her eyes to this, but be sure to do it in a kind way. She has made many sacrifices for you, and you do not want to repay her with unkindness."

TODAY'S RECIPE

DEEP SOUTH HAM SALAD

Half cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 cup cooked ham cut into thin strips, 1 cup Swiss cheese cut into thin strips, 1/4 cup chopped dill pickle, 2 cups hot or warm cooked white rice, 1 cup cooked green peas, salad greens, 3 ripe tomatoes, cut into slices or wedges.

To make three heaping cups of white, fluffy, perfectly cooked rice: Put 1 cup uncooked white rice, 2 cups cold water and 1 teaspoon salt into a 2-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover the saucepan with a lid. Do not remove lid or stir rice while it is cooking. Leave saucepan over this low heat for 14 minutes. Turn heat off. The rice is now ready to use. However, leave the cover on the saucepan to keep the rice warm if you are not ready to use it immediately.

For extra fluffy, tender, separate grains—allow the rice to steam for an additional 10 minutes—with heat off, but without removing lid.

The above will make slightly more cooked rice than is needed for this recipe. Keep the balance of the ready-cooked rice in the refrigerator in a covered container. You'll find it mighty handy for adding to many quick, delicious and inexpensive soups, salads, casserole dishes, hot breads and desserts.

Method—Mix together the mayonnaise, salt and pepper. If you like onion, add 1 teaspoon grated onion to the mayonnaise. Add the ham, Swiss cheese, pickle and hot rice. It is important that the rice be hot or at least warm. Add the peas and gently mix. Cover and chill about 1 hour or serve at room temperature, if desired. This salad is best if it is not too cold. Serve on salad greens and garnish with the tomatoes. This recipe makes 7 servings.

Send 25 cents in coins for this pattern (stamps cannot be accepted) for this recipe. Print plainly size, name, address, style number.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Chorus Girl' Bending Reduces if Done Right

The "chorus girl" exercise, or the front bend, is a valuable exercise if it is done correctly. That old saying "bend down, sister" always makes us feel as though the inches will soon disappear.

Actually, much of the good of this exercise is lost when it is done as most people do it. I have given this before in my column, but let me call it to your attention today as an especially good diaphragm reducer when it is done properly.

Stand with your feet separated and your arms hanging at your sides. Lift your arms shoulder height, palms toward the ceiling, and bend your elbows, fingers pointing toward the ceiling. Your arms and wrists are relaxed. Bend your trunk forward. Touch the floor or your toes with your fingertips if you can, or go down toward the toes as far as possible. Lift your trunk and return.

If you would like to have my tested exercises which will take a few inches from your waistline in a few weeks, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 6, "Don't Go to Waist!" Address: Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

St. Luke's Church Choir Sings For Couple Wed in Friday Service

Members of St. Luke's Church choir, of which the bride is a member, sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Twenty-Third Psalm" last evening at the wedding of Joan Annabelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Nicholson, 1520 Arrow Road, to Mr. Raymond John Calton, son of Mrs. A. Darlison, 2544 Roseberry Avenue, and the late Mr. Harold J. Calton.

Canon F. Pike officiated at the double ring ceremony. Carnations and peonies arranged in baskets decorated the church, and the same flowers were placed at the altar. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

The lovely, fair-haired bride was gowned in white slipper satin topped with lace. The gown featured a long, graceful train, full skirt and fitted bodice with high neckline. Sleeves were lily pointed. A sweetheart-shaped headress of satin and lace held her chapel length veil of illusion net and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white carnations. Her only jewelry was an heirloom cameo brooch.

Background music at the Olde England Inn was played by Bernie Ryall on the console organ. A basket of flowers was placed by the fireplace and arrangements of carnations enhanced the bridal table. The wedding cake was flanked by candles in silver candelabra.

For receiving guests, mother of the bride wore a dress of brown rose-point lace over satin, fashioned on princess lines with full, flared skirt. She had pink accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds. The groom's mother wore a dress of Queen's blue crepe, with sleeves and yoke of lace over peach nylon.

Mr. and Mrs. Calton will live at 3079 Earl Grey Street.

Matron of honor was Mrs. net. Her accessories were white and she wore a corsage of rosebuds.

Stan Street proposed a toast to the bride. Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clayton of Pender Harbour and Mr. and Mrs. Fraser of Abbotsford.

The couple left for a mainland honeymoon. For traveling Mrs. Calton wore a suit of grey wool worsted with white toecap and hat and grey accessories. Her corsage was a mauve orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Calton will live at 3079 Earl Grey Street.

SKIP MANLEY, CANADA'S OMAR

100,000 Visitors For Stratford Show

By JOHN PATERSON

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Skip Manley's name can be added to the list of professionals who have combined to make the annual Shakespeare festival here an event that has gripped the imagination of the theatrical world—as well as a box office success.

On the basis of average sales, more than 100,000 visitors from Canada and the United States are expected to see the three plays this summer in the roomy smoke-blue canvas theatre built by Skip. They will see the result of a combination of talents from here and abroad.

Manley, a gregarious, middle-aged aristocrat of circuses, is from Chicago. Tyrone Guthrie, director of "The Taming of the Shrew," and "The Greek tragedy, 'Oedipus Rex'" is from the London stage, known also for his work at the Metropolitan Opera, the Edinburgh Festival and successful productions in Finland and Israel.

STAGE ON THREE SIDES

Another Londoner, Cecil Clarke, is the festival's artistic director and will stage "Measure for Measure." The unique stage, which thrusts itself into the audience on three sides, and costumes are by the talented Tanya Moisilovich, who has worked with Dr. Guthrie in many of his productions. James Mason of London and Hollywood will star. His leading ladies include Frances Hyland of Shaunavon, Sask., and the London stage, and Eleanor Stuart of Montreal, whose lengthy career includes supporting roles to many stage greats in England and the continent.

The tent itself nestles among trees in a park which follows the soft-flowing Avon River. Tent capacity has been increased from last year's 1,500 seats to 1,900 for the festival opening June 28.

Last year the tent had the usual interior posts supporting the canvas roof. Two of the wooden posts were in the backstage area, but the other two were in the audience section.

After months of planning, Manley, who has traveled most of North and South America as a tent and rigging expert since he was 16, came up with the radical proposal to move the posts to the outside of the tent.

Engineers thought it couldn't be done. Manley convinced them it could.

TOWERING STEEL POSTS

Once he had it in blueprint form, it was Manley's job to translate it into reality. He directed the delicate tent-hoisting job from a bosun's chair atop one of the 95-foot steel posts which replace the wooden ones.

The tent has the largest poleless area of any "big top" known, 100 by 108 feet.

Each of the steel poles was built to carry a load of 7½ tons of canvas, something never before attempted. The poles are eight inches in diameter.

Three miles of steel cable and 1½ miles of rope are used to take up the stresses caused by weight, and to take care of extra strain due to high winds or heavy rain.

Manley has made generous allowance for weather. In his calculation of safety factors he has, in his words, "put money in the bank."

Once erected, just before rehearsals began in mid-May, Skip Manley moved into his $23,300 tent and will live there until it is torn down after the Aug. 21 closing.

Soviet to Unveil New Type Glider

LONDON (UPI)—Radio Moscow today said the Soviet Union will celebrate a "solemn" aviation day tomorrow by unveiling the world's first glider that flaps its wings like a bird.

The Communist broadcast said other phases of the celebration in Moscow will include a fly-past by aircraft trailing banners with the portraits of Lenin and Stalin and "glory to the Communist party of the Soviet Union."

"In no other country of the world has formation flying been carried out on such a scale," the broadcast, monitored here, said.

'Out of Noonday Sun' Rule for Canucks

OTTAWA (BUP)—Soldiers of the 25th Brigade will take every afternoon off whether they like it or not until the end of the sizzling Korean summer, the army said today.

Compulsory furlough periods will keep front line units out of the sun from noon until 4 p.m. and other units will knock off from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., the army said.

B.C. Woman Jailed For Burning Home

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Tilly Rebekowec, 45, was sentenced to three months at hard labor Friday and fined $1,000 when she admitted setting fire to her Lulu Island home Feb. 19.

If the fine is not paid, Justice A. D. Macfarlane ruled, she must serve an additional six months.

ROMFORD, Essex (Reuters)

A cricket scoreboard was unveiled here today as a memorial to Kenneth Barnes, the England and Essex fast bowler, who was killed in an air crash in Canada in 1941. He was 30.

would receive large sums in royalties from the gas wells in production and would use this money to service the $60,000,000 it put into the project.

"I am firmly convinced," Mr. Johnson said, "that once the company was in a position, with the pipeline built, to deliver gas at the U.S. border, the U.S. would take it because even with the rival pipeline in operation there still would not be enough natural gas to supply the potential market on the Pacific Coast."

"The minute the U.S. was ready to buy the gas private capital would be prepared to take over the complete financing of the company."

"The province's agreement with the company would provide that once it got into the American market, it should im-cific Gas & Electric Co., will file the FCP decision.

Pelly said the California interest, including the city of San Francisco will demand that the San Juan field, one from which Pacific northwest intends drawing its supply, should be held in reserve for future California market requirements.

Supporters of Westcoast transmission natural gas pipeline served notice today they will continue the battle for permission to supply gas to the Pacific Northwest states and B.C.'s lower mainland from the Peace River fields.

Despite Friday's blow from the U.S. Federal Power Commission, which rejected Westcoast's bid to supply gas to Washington, Oregon and other Northwest areas, government and industrial leaders came up fighting.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Lands Minister R. E. Sommers said they were "not unduly pessimistic" over the re-junction.

NOT HAPPY

Others were less optimistic.

Alan J. McDonald, chairman of the B.C. Division, Canadian Manufacturers' Association said: "This is a great disappointment, and will seriously injure the great boom of B.C.'s north country."

Norman R. Whittall, president of Canadian Collieries, which has interests in large oil and gas holdings in the Peace River, proposed that Canada "go it alone."

Premier Bennett Friday dispelled all fears that the unfavorable decision would affect northern extension of the PGE to Dawson Creek.

B.C. officials have suggested a government subsidy, federal and provincial, to assist the line's construction and operation during its initial years.

In Dawson Creek, centre of the northern gas fields, Chamber of Commerce president Angus Carmichael said the U.S. decision would "retard development of the Peace River area by 10 years."

Premier Bennett Friday dispelled all fears that the unfavorable decision would affect northern extension of the PGE to Dawson Creek.

"The railway will go through as planned," he said.

Other northern officials predicted a sharp decline in oil and gas exploration as a result of the decision.

HOWE OPTIMISTIC

In Ottawa, Trade Minister C. D. Howe expressed a hope in the Commons that Canadian natural gas may still be piped to the U.S. northwest.

He promised an investigation into the new situation by the federal government in an effort to see if additional action could be taken.

However, Mr. Howe said he did not think any purpose would be served by Canada making an official protest to the U.S. government. He said the federal government did everything possible to facilitate the application of Westcoast transmission.

Mr. Howe said the main FPC objection to the Westcoast application was that the commission did not want a foreign gas source to be the sole supplier to the U.S. states.

"If the U.S. domestic gas supply does not prove sufficient for the area, it might be supplemented in the future with Canadian gas," he added.

The trade minister told the Commons that the FPC is a body similar to Canada's Board of Transport Commissioners, in that it makes judicial decisions

STRIKE BREAKERS

Pickets did not interfere when they left.

The picket line around the wharf Friday consisted of a half-dozen men, but today there were about 25 men. No one showed up for work.

Jim Garnett, assistant city engineer, acknowledged two men had been engaged to make the burners available for getting rid of putrescible material. He also said that garbage scows were tied up alongside the wharf where citizens could dump their own garbage "if they so inclined."

Pickets report no garbage has been dumped since the start of the strike Thursday.

BRIDGE ANSWER

Only other place picketed today was Johnson Street Bridge, still being operated on a curtailed basis by E & N Railway. The outside workers are expected to give an answer Monday to the city's request that they provide a regular operator for two hours' service each morning and afternoon until the strike ends.

Public works supervisors were called out Friday afternoon to fix a broken water valve on Selkirk Avenue. A bulldozer caused the trouble accidentally. Although in Esquimalt, the city is responsible for maintaining water lines there.

Ed Mallek, president of Kiwanis Village project, will address the monthly meeting of Senior Citizens' Coordinating Council, Tuesday, 8 p.m. in city hall. Also to speak is W. P. Merner of Saanich Health Unit.

Youth Goes to Jail For Carrying Weapon

VANCOUVER (CP)—Colin W. Chalmers, 21, who arrived here recently from Victoria, was sentenced Friday to 20 months' imprisonment on a charge of carrying an offensive weapon.

Constable George Rake, who arrested Chalmers, said he was carrying a sawed-off shotgun from a shoulder strap. He quoted the youth as saying: "You are lucky I didn't have a chance to use this."

"It is an unusual proposal, but the situation is unusual, and requires an unusual remedy," he said.

"Wishful thinking or hand-wringing will not solve the problem. Bold action is required." If necessary, a special session of the Legislature might be called to discuss this question. It is the number one problem of our times."

Proceeds go to further the work carried out by volunteer members of the organization, oldest of its kind in the world.

It is hoped that eventually a new brigade headquarters will be constructed in Victoria to aid the large local membership in its humanitarian work. Drive ends July 15.

As he takes his annual trips across Canada, Harry Loder has the satisfaction of seeing thousands of homes built according to blueprints produced by his company.

Mr. Loder, who was in Victoria today, is president of Loder Co. Ltd., Edmonton. For 25 years the company has been supplying plans to homeowners and advising them on materials to be used.

The company stresses the pride and satisfaction of possessing a home in its self-sufficient reason for buying one. They have repeatedly stated that their proposed $130,000,000 662-mile line is doomed without the U.S. market.

What will happen to the Peace River gas fields is not known. Alberta officials have suggested that the gas be piped to eastern Canada.

B.C. officials have suggested a government subsidy, federal and provincial, to assist the line's construction and operation during its initial years.

The home is an investment which is second to none as sound family financial planning, and even home improvements usually add more to the value of the home than they cost.

Home building in Canada is maintaining its increase, Mr. Loder said. In Ontario it is especially brisk. There is a well-defined program of expansion in Newfoundland.

Most difficult task, however, was the fitting of the stereophonic sound which allows for off-stage effects via four strategically placed speakers.

First movie to be shown will be "King of the Khyber Rifles," starring Tyrone Power, Terry Moore and Michael Rennie.

Other theater houses featuring CinemaScope include the Royal Theatre and the Fox.

RCAF Fighter Wing To Europe Early in 1955

OTTAWA (BUP)—The 1st Fighter Wing of the RCAF is expected to move to France early in the new year, defense headquarters said today.

The wing has been stationed at North Luffenham, Eng., since it went overseas. It will move to Marville, France, when accommodation and other facilities are ready.

That likely will be early in the new year, the announcement said.

Mr. Howe said he did not think any purpose would be served by Canada making an official protest to the U.S. government. He said the federal government did everything possible to facilitate the application of Westcoast transmission.

The trade minister told the Commons that the FPC is a body similar to Canada's Board of Transport Commissioners, in that it makes judicial decisions on the basis of facts.

Meanwhile, union officials were checking to determine who was who moved the field of the softball field in Central Park sometime Friday.

There were no other developments.

City Council is still awaiting an answer from Labor Minister Lyle Wicks on its query of Thursday as to whether the strike is legal under the new government labor act.

Government officials have indicated, however, that since the workers complied with all regulations laid down in the old act, there will be no interference by the labor department in the dispute.

BAPCO-TIMES SWIM TO HELP SOLARIUM'S CRIPPLED CHILDREN

You Can Win $1,000 by Estimating Flo Chadwick's Time

... champion at work.

How long do you think Florence Chadwick will be able to stay in the chilly waters of the Strait of Juan de Fuca?

Do you think she can make the Bapco-Times swim from Victoria to Port Angeles? If she does, how long will it take her?

If she doesn't, how long before she has to give up?

Everybody who reads the Times will have a chance to answer these questions in the next seven weeks, with a jackpot of $1,000 for the person who comes closest to the correct answer.

It will be the greatest estimating contest Victorians have ever had a chance to take part in, and there's no limit to the number of estimates they make.

Florence is coming to Victoria July 1 to start training for her swim attempt during the second week of August. Victorians will follow her training grind with great interest, and in the meantime have the opportunity to calculate her chances.

An official coupon on which estimates are to be made will appear in Tuesday's Times. It will then appear on Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each week until the swim takes place.

The Bapco-Times award of $1,000 will go to the one person who comes nearest to the exact time spent by Miss Chadwick in the water. Timing will be down to the last minute and second.

Since Florence is receiving a guarantee for her swim the estimates will apply only to the attempt that is declared official. It may be that she will have one or two false starts—that is, she may run into a sudden change of weather when barely underway, and might then postpone her official attempt.

The $1,000 award was conceived by former Victoria mayor J. Carl Pendray, president of Bapco, with the aim of utilizing the big swim to help the work of Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children.

Here's how the Solarium will benefit: Solarium Junior League girls have undertaken the job of sorting and tabulating the thousands of estimates which are expected. In return, it has been agreed that estimators shall enclose a contribution to the "Shower of Dimes" with their estimate.

Every cent of this money will go to the Solarium. All administration, promotion and advertising costs are being absorbed by Bapco and the Times.

Complete rules, and the first coupon, will be printed in Tuesday's Times. During the contest, each subscriber will automatically get 14 coupons—on Tuesday and Wednesday each week for seven weeks. There is no limit to the number of estimates a person may make.

Many facts about Florence's previous records have been published. The unknown factor this time will be the effects of frigid Straits temperatures.

As training progresses, all these facts must be weighed by the reader. The person who wins the $1,000 will thus qualify as an expert student of records, tides, temperatures, wind velocities, human nature and—who knows?—luck!

FLO ON SEATTLE TV TONIGHT

Swim champion Florence Chadwick will appear on television tonight from station KING, Channel 5, Seattle. The station will carry a kinescoped production of the ABC-TV show, "Who's My Boss," at 7:30 p.m., featuring Miss Chadwick.

GOV'T AID ON GAS URGED

Strike Breakers Appear At City Garbage Wharf

By DAVE STOCK

Striking city workmen today increased the strength of their picket lines at the city-garbage wharf, following the appearance Friday of two apparent strike-breakers.

The Civic Employees' Protective Association, Local No. 50, has not labelled the two as strike breakers but Ed Duncan, secretary, maintained: "The picket line was there and they went through it. People can draw their own conclusions."

Mr. Duncan said it was known the two workers—one the city manager's department, the other a car which pickets say was driven by Douglas C. McNair, assistant junior engineer. The car passed placard-carrying pickets and drove directly onto the wharf.

The two men cleaned out the incinerators and quit at 4:30.

Guatemala Rebels Advance 9 Miles

Communique Admits Capital Strafed; Peasants Join Invaders

GUATEMALA (AP)—A Guatemalan communique acknowledged today invading forces have advanced a little more than nine miles inside the country from the Honduras border.

The capital's airport was strafed by a single fighter plane in the third air raid of the city. Anti-aircraft fire blazed from every corner of the capital at the plane, which dropped leaflets.

The first raid was at 4 p.m. on Friday.

There were reports that peasants had mobbed a passenger train between Puerto Barrios and Guatemala. About 150 passengers were forced off the train. This was the first report of violence of this nature in the two-day-old war.

The invasion was the culmination of a long-standing effort to unseat the Communist-backed government of President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman. The second raid occurred
